INFORMAL AT UNION A SUCCESS

Music All That Could Be Desired.

LADIES RESPLENDENT.

Tired Crowd Admitted Dance To Be Best Yet Held.

The second informal dance of the season was held in the Union ballroom last night, and was a complete success from every point of view. One hundred and fifty couples were present and enjoyed every minute of the evening to the full. The programme, which consisted of twelve regular dances and a number of extras, while short, was perfect.

The music played by LeBaron's Orchestra, consisting of Karl LeBaron, George Clouthier, Moore, Kelly Nadeau and A. B. Copping, was as good as any ever heard within the walls of the old Union. These artists are experienced, and have evidently practised together for some time. Their rendition of the latest dance music left nothing to be desired.

The floor was a bit less polished than last time, which made it much easier to dance upon. Instead of putting on enough wax to last the whole evening, the management had a duller finish put on at first and another at intermission. This arrangement is far superior to the other.

Catering, in the hands of Mr. Darvill, of the cafeteria, was perfect in every detail. The checking system worked to perfection, and there was no great delay in releasing clothing.

The costumes of the ladies were, as usual, dazzling. The fair sex seems to have excelled itself in the matter of personal adornment. Every color of the rainbow was represented—and then some.

Mrs. Mackay, Mrs. Nicholson, Mrs. Whitnall, Mlle. Touren and Miss Newnham acted as chaperons.

The ladies present were: Misses D Charlton, R. Marsh, E. Bagley, P. Herbert, M. Holland, D. Clelland, Grainger, McKennon, McPhail, Dorken, Safford, Campbell, Beny, Glasford, King, Elken, Wright, King, B. Simpson, Klemhans, Reid, Smith, Grigg, M. Sheehan, D. Andrews, P Sears, Gilday, F. COMMERCE DEFEAT DENTISTRY TEAM

Clean Exhibition Of Basketball Ended With Score 32 to 17.

Commerce II. came out on the long end of a 32 to 17 score in an interesting game of basketball with Dents II. last night. During the first period the play was fairly even, neither side showing much good work and scoring being chiefly done by long shots from well out. Fraser, of Commerce, showed up especially well in this particular and was chiefly accountable for the lead held by his team at half time. Blackburn, of Dents, worked hard for his team and was responsible for a couple of baskets as well as a number of points on fouls. The period ended with Commerce in the lead by a margin of two points. Score: 13—11.

In the second period Commerce settled down to more consistent basketball and as a result of better combination and shooting soon ran up a safe lead. In this period Hughes and Kee did good work for the winners and Fraser was again noticeable for some good shooting and combination work. For the losers Blackburn and Levy showed up by far the best. Dents were unfortunate in losing one of their best men shortly after the beginning of the game when Gray, who started at centre, turned his ankle and was forced to leave the floor.

The game throughout was clean, holding being practically the only foul. Coach Van Wagner handled the game to the satisfaction of all.

Following is the line up of the two teams:

Commerce II.		Dents II.
Hughes	Forwards	Laishley
Kee	"	Blackburn
Elderkin	Centre	Grey
Mott	Defence	McNally
Fraser	"	Levy
Burke	Spares	Simon
———	"	Carver

HARRIERS HOPE TO CARRY OFF HONORS TO-DAY

Hamilton Showed Excellent Form In Tryout.

CONTEST KEEN.

Harriers Expect To Repeat Last Saturday's Win Over Toronto.

All eyes about the college are resting on the Harrier Meet which takes place at Toronto this afternoon.

After a season of strenuous training, the McGill sextette is confident that the championship will not leave Montreal this year.

On November 15, 1919, despite very unfavorable weather, McGill won easily from strong teams representing Queen's, R.M.C. and Toronto, and with average weather conditions the McGill team should repeat their last year's win. The course in Toronto is on flatter ground than the course on which our men have trained, and this will be a point greatly in favor of the men who have so often run up the Serpentine in the teeth of cold wind.

"Bill" Antliff, last year's winner is again on the team, and is expected to secure a good place in the meet. With him is R. L. Hamilton, who also featured in last year's meet. Hamilton did the trying course here last Monday in less than half an hour despite the slippery condition of the roads and a disagreeably cold wind. At the end of his run he seemed in excellent condition. It is almost certain that he will be the first man over the line in to-day's struggle The favorite has strong support in Stephen, Legg and Simpson, who gave Hamilton a keen run in the trials.

Unfortunately, the "Daily" has not been able to get any data about the other teams entering, but it is believed that all the contestants will make a desperate effort to capture the honors. As usual, McGill looks to 'Varsity to give her the run "for her money," but our men are confident that they will do as their brother athletes did at the Stadium a week ago.

While the team naturally holds most of the interest of the student body, the men who have turned out to the Harrier practices, though not successful in obtaining a place, deserve great credit. Many of them will no doubt figure in future meets, and even if this should not be the case, the encouragement and interest which they have helped to stimulate plays no small part in producing a winner.

ENGLISH RUGBY.

The English Rugby game which was to be played at the Stadium to-day between All-Montreal and a representative Ottawa team has been called off, owing to the inability of the Ottawa team to make the trip.

OPENING OF CAMPAIGN LAST NIGHT

Many Prominent Speakers Addressed Meeting.

DEVONSHIRE SPOKE.

Enthusiasm the Keynote and Success Of Campaign Assured.

The McGill Five Million Dollar Campaign was opened last night at the Windsor Hotel. Some of the most prominent men in Canada addressed the large audience of supporters.

Mr. E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, acted as chairman, and conducted the meeting with excellent ability.

The first and most prominent speaker was the Duke of Devonshire. The Duke opened his address by saying that he accepted the invitation to speak for McGill with great satisfaction, and that he considered it an honor to do so. He then outlined the actions which the University has done in the past, the noble part McGill took in the late war, and the splendid effect McGill has made and is making upon the entire community.

"McGill," said His Excellency, "is one of the most important institutions in Canada, and should be proud of what it is now, and what it has been."

The Governor-General then pointed out the necessity of educated and trained men and women at present, and how our country depends upon them for construction, social life, success and prosperity. He indicated McGill's shortage in its number of instructors and professors capable of training men for research, this being due to the great amount of work which has been placed on the shoulders of the existing staff.

The Duke then explained that the more everyone would do to encourage loyalty and affection to the University, the greater would the advantage be to the whole community. In conclusion to his brilliant address, His Excellency expressed his sincerest wishes for all possible success in the campaign.

Mr. Taschereau, Prime Minister of Quebec, followed the Governor-General with an excellent address. Mr. Taschereau commenced by congratulating Sir Arthur Currie upon the excellent work he is at present doing in McGill. The Prime Minister said that there are two kinds of people in existence, of which one kind are borrowers, the other lenders. In this case McGill is borrowing five million dollars, but is sure to return it with hundred per cent. interest.

"It has been said that France gives the best possible education, but let this be said of Quebec," stated the Prime Minister emphatically. "As for the million dollars I was said to have promised on behalf of the government, we will ask the government for it at the next Legislation meeting, and if that body is still in existence, we may depend on its ratification.

ERECTION OF A VIMY MEMORIAL

Embracing Aspects Make Plan Popular Throughout Entire Dominion.

Although the McGill students have their hands full with the Y.M.C.A. drive and the McGill endowment campaign, many of them will remember the Sunday offering for the Memorial Church to be erected in Lens (France).

It is to be a Memorial to the Canadian heroes—so many of them students—who fell on the battle fields of France. It is to be a monument commemorating a great victory, that of the Canadian troops at Vimy Ridge. It is to be a gift to the French people whose towns and villages were razed to the ground by the guns from friends and foes. It is to be an enterprize showing the fraternal union of the five great Protestant denominations of Canada. This fourfold aspect of the plan is making it popular from one end of the Dominion to the other, and will have a special appeal to the student body who will appreciate the depth of its remembrance of the dead and the breadth of its appeal to the living.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1920.

THE AIMS OF EDUCATION

Nowadays the college student is faced with a great many problems that have a great deal to do with his way of thinking. There was a time when the average man at college was there for the purpose of receiving a liberal education in the old sense of the word—and education which would make of him what the word implies—an "intellectual freeman."

To-day the insistent demand for the specialist has been reflected in the changed conditions obtaining at our schools and colleges. The prime requisite nowadays is not that the student shall be trained to adopt himself to any set of circumstances that may arise, but that he shall be fitted for the profession or trade which he intends to take up. This is a state of affairs that springs directly from the new and changed conditions in our economic and industrial life, and it is only natural that modern education should have followed the line of the popular demand and to find that schools and colleges should have shaped their curricula so that as much time as possible is given to the "essential" subjects which are required for the student's future life-work.

That this tendency however has led to a more narrow conception of the word "education" is undeniable. The aim and object of professors and teachers is no longer to give their pupils a thorough grounding in these broad principles of learning which form the foundations of all human knowledge. The result has been that our universities are daily turning out men who are proficient in everything save knowing how to learn—they are cunning craftsmen within their own sphere but beyond that they have no particular advantage over any of their associates possessed of the same degree of common sense, who have not had a college education.

Such a conception of the function of a college education must inevitably re-act to the prejudice of the University as a training-ground for the nation in its march towards better things. The late war offered a splendid object-lesson of the disadvantages under which the specialist and the technician labored when confronted by a new and unfamiliar set of conditions. The methodic German mind, schooled to perfection along the well-worn grooves of German industrial specialization was unable to respond to the demands made upon it by the cataclysm of war, and in the end, the more adaptable mentality of the French and Anglo-Saxon won its inevitable victory.

It has long been the custom for Canadians to disparage their own educational institutions and to pretend that what is meant by the old schoolman's term "a sound education" was only to be found on the other side of the Atlantic. We have grown accustomed to the idea that "they do things better over there." A little reflection, however, will show how short-sighted is this policy of self-deprecation. If Canada as a great nation is under the necessity of sending her sons outside of the Dominion for the purposes of education, we can never hope to realize that feeling of national consciousness which, we are told, is all that is required to make us a great nation.

In Canada education has undoubtedly suffered through a mistaken conception of the aim to which it should be directed. When the Canadian universities realize that by too great insistence upon the mercenary advantages to be gained from a college education they are deliberately guiding the youth of the nation into a "cul de sac" we may expect to see a tremendous revival of popularity for a Canadian education. All that is required is a lead. Will it be given by McGill?

Correspondence

The "Daily" is not responsible for the sentiments of letters published in the correspondence columns. Signed communications from graduates, undergraduates and members of the faculties will be placed in print if they are not of too great length.

Correspondents are requested to observe the unwritten law of the newspaper office — that they write upon ONE side of the paper ONLY.

No communications will be admitted in this column without the name of the writer being attached, not necessarily for PUBLICATION.

To the Editor, "McGill Daily."

Dear Sir,—

I was exceedingly interested in the editorial in regard to sneak-thieving from the Union, which appeared in the "Daily" this morning.

It is pleasant to learn that a system of checking is being considered, but as one of the victims of this epidemic of petty crime, I would like to know if the management of the Union has taken any steps to lead to the recovery of the numerous articles which have already been taken. Everyone agrees that the culprit should be accorded the severest punishment if caught, but until some action is taken the guilty party will be at large long after the overcoat (or should I say overcoats) he is now wearing has rotted into nothingness.

The ordinary student dislikes having to go to the police authorities and ask them to take action in regard to a theft occurring in a building belonging to the whole undergraduate body, but unless the management of the Union take steps immediately, not only to attempt the recovery of the article already stolen, but to ascertain who the guilty party is, and to protect the property of others not yet visited, those who have been victimized will be forced to take action of some sort on their own.

Thanking you for the space, Mr. Editor,

I remain,
Yours sincerely,
J. B. LANE.
633, Durocher Ave.,
Outremont, Que.

To the Editor, "McGill Daily."

Sir,—

It appears to be a popular pursuit to pick on the Union House Committee, and as we are nothing if not up-to-the-moment, I rush to writing with yet another suggestion.

Where have the ash trays which used to adorn the tables of the Union Lounge Room gone? Some days ago I brought this deficiency to the notice of a member of the Committee, but no action has been taken. It is not very pleasant to have little butts strewn about the floor, as they are apt to be walked on and become total losses, thus working a grave injustice on the Snipe Hunters.

WOODBINE LANCER.

To the Editor, "McGill Daily."

Dear Sir,—

I should like to add a word of comment to what has already been published in the "Daily" with reference to the work of the Y.M.C.A., as I understand that the McGill Y.M.C.A. is now appealing to the students and professors of the University for financial support.

Whatever may be the relation of McGill Association with the work done by the Y.M.C.A. overseas, I feel that I must express my hearty appreciation of the latter. Throughout the war this organization, starting with small and inadequate staff and equipment, steadily increased in effectiveness until every branch of the Canadian Army in Canada, England and France was served by it. Its work, of consistently high quality throughout, attained its maximum efficiency under conditions of peculiar difficulty in the latter phases of the war, when it made a noteworthy contribution to the success of the troops in the field.

I am pleased to find the Association established at McGill, as I have confidence in its ability to serve students, if motivated by the same spirit which marked its activities during the war.

A. W. CURRIE.

Library Notes

Students are asked to refrain from breaking off portions of the cane seats of the chairs provided in the Reading Room. The damage recently done is probably the result of thoughtlessness, and it is believed that the mere mention of this slight but quite unnecessary damage to University furniture will prevent any repetition.

* * *

If a reference library is the nucleus of a university library, the encyclopaedias are the backbone of a good reference library. The Redpath Library is fortunate in having available the following encyclopaedias:

The Encyclopaedia Britannica.
The New International Encyclopaedia.
The Encyclopaedia Americana.
Nelson's Loose Leaf Encyclopaedia.
La Grande Encyclopaedia.
Larousse: Grand Dictionnaire Universel.
Brockhaus: Konversations—Lexikon.

The first point for the student to recognize in using these publications is that encyclopaedias vary in the amount of information provided, in the style of presentation, and in authority. It is necessary, therefore, to become personally familiar with the outstanding features of the different encyclopaedias and with their scope and arrangement.

The three main questions to be asked regarding any encyclopaedia are:

1—How accurate, complete, and up-to-date is it?

2—How are its facts arranged—under specific headings, or grouped logically under large subjects?

3—Does it point the way through bibliographies to other available library material?

Satisfactory answers to these questions come by familiarity with the use of encyclopaedias and by frequent comparisons in the treatment of a subject by different encyclopaedias. A few suggestions, however, may be given to help the student in forming his judgments correctly:

1. The student is entitled to be suspicious of an encyclopaedia if the publisher is not well known and reputable. The name of a well-established firm is a guarantee. Some mushroom firms publish subscription sets or make use of the plates of old editions, and by new title pages and the addition of illustrations sometimes attempt to deceive the buyer.

2. The date of an encyclopaedia is an important factor in judging of the value of its contents, especially in the matter of scientific information. Do not consider merely the date on the title page, which may be merely that of the particular printing, but look for the copyright date, which is usually printed on the back of the title page and is frequently the best indication of the original date of publication. Unfortunately some publishers still use the term "edition" when they mean merely "reprinting" without any change.

3. Much of the value of an encyclopaedia depends upon the authority and ability of the editor. The title page will give some information regarding his fitness for the work, and additional facts may be obtained from such biographical reference books as "Who's Who."

4. The contributors are really responsible for the facts printed in an encyclopaedia and, as a general rule, articles which are signed are better than anonymous contributions. The better encyclopaedias are written by specialists who are usually the most prominent men in their particular subjects.

5. Unless the student is familiar with a particular encyclopaedia it is always desirable to take the time to glance through the preface for information regarding the scope and arrangement of the entries.

6 The character of the articles themselves is the best indication of the value of an encyclopaedia. The better encyclopaedias give a full and adequate treatment of a subject, amounting in the case of the Britan- adequate treatment of a subject, ject, and containing comprehensive bibliographies and cross references.

7. The student's judgment of the value of a book is sometimes aided by a consideration of the general appearance of the volume. Excellence of paper, typography and illustrations usually being found with a hign quality of information, and vice versa.

Next week a few suggestions regarding the specific use of encyclopaedias will be given.

Rhymes of a Salaried Man.

The market man brought out some cod,
But they were not for me;
For when I asked "What are those fish?"
He answered, "C.O.D."

Glad to see you at the game Saturday.

Glad to see you glad at the game Saturday.

But enough of that. One couldn't say "Boo" to Toronto afterwards. One had no need to. Like Calais with Queen Mary, his name was engraven on their hearts.

"Them Bones Shall Rise Again."

Sir,—The other day in Surgery clinic wo were notified that there was a 'phone call for Mr. Stiff. Wasn't that rather slighting the Department of Anatomy?

Yours, MEDICO.

Perhaps, however, he had feft a call before he passed on. If one had told the w.k. average man fifty years ago that by taking a rubber tube off a hook and speaking into a transmitter, one could communicate with one's friends in, say St. Lambert, the a.m. would have stated that one was crazy. And now it appears that the average man would have been right. Which leads one to wonder over the recent lawsuit with regard to the possession of St. Louis 3333. The main point brought out was the ease with which four threes could be remembered. In support, we may state that we have never forgotten the occasions on which we ourselves were fortunate enough to hold four treys. Neither, possibly, have those who opposed us. It is, indeed, "beaucoup mitt."

Ah! Ah! Mon Doo!

Sir,—One notes that A. A. Mondou is president of the "Strathcona Compagnie d'Assurance Incendie." How pleasant it must be to hear the V.P. call to him when the news of the big losses comes in. And the testimonials! "Mondou, Mondou, M'a attendu." His fame should spread.

OBSERVER.

Might we point out that if you read this colyum you might also contribute, if only that "He who runs may read." A life as serious as ours should be brightened up occasionally.

On Seeking Truth.

You may search for truth in manner scientific,
You may seek for it on spec with Freud and Jung.
Of results and theorums you may be prolific,
Which originate where champagne corks go "ploong."

You may string with Aristotle or with Plato,
Or with Neitsche, Treitzke, Schopenhauer or Kant.
If you have as many eyes as a potato,
You may read the mass of stuff that's now extant.

For your veritas with ardor and with passion,
And new ways of knowing it your breast may burn;
But with years you'll find, despite the phychic fashion,
That experience is the only way to learn.

A crafty lot, those landlords. This small room reminds us of a face which was on another and far different floor. Personally we should prefer something with a bit more privacy.

"God Bless Us All," Said Tiny Jeff.

Sir,—He increased my bank balance so much on Saturday that I am going to call him "Christmas" Carroll. Toronto can call it a "drop" kick if they like. I have another name for it. No silk shirts were worn on Saturday and thereby hangs a ———, but excuse me, I hear the class bell ring. POMFRET.

Seen yourself in the movies, yet? The film is quite good, especially of the R.V.C. folk dancers. Unfortunately most of the performers just had to look at the camera once, and nothing is much sadder than the average face when portrayed by the unsentimental lens.

If this football season doesn't end soon, we shall be obliged to apply for an excess prophets tax.

The campaign to raise $2400 among the students of the university for the purpose of carrying on the work of the McGill Y.M.C.A. is now well under way and the progress so far reported is satisfactory. The first report of returns shows a total of $533.25, which is made up as follows:

The McGill Y.M.C.A. is one of the oldest student associations of the University, having been in existence for more than 30 years. It has no connection with the general Y.M.C.A. and is governed by a committee of McGill men, mostly undergraduates.

The importance of the work of this association to the students of McGill is so self-evident that it seems superfluous to outline it here. Many student activities are conducted within the walls of Strathcona Hall, such as Freshman receptions, addresses, Sunday Sings, religious services, Conversats, discussion groups and many others. Out of town students are assisted in finding rooms, getting acquainted and introduced to various private homes in the city. Strathcona Hall is open to all men attending the university and is a social gathering place, thus supplementing the education of the class room.

For the reasons above stated, this association expects the support of every member of the student body. It is an institution with lofty aims and practical ideals. It is up to the student body to support it. The objective this year is $2400 and with the increased registration it is hoped that this will be easily attained. At a time when McGill University is appealing to the outer world for five million dollars, it is the duty of every student to see that institutions within her walls should not suffer for lack of financial support.

The class captains, who are responsible for the team organization in their respective classes, are detailed below. Everybody will be canvassed, but should any be overlooked, they are requested to kindly hand in their subscription to their class captains.

tion of this," concluded Mr. Taschereau.

Sir Arthur Currie then made a very appealing speech, in which he pointed out very clearly the financial position of McGill. Sir Arthur mentioned how each faculty was financially embarrassed, and of what great importance the University was to the whole of the Dominion. "The Faculty of Arts is the heart of McGill," said the Principal. "In the Faculty of Law there are not only students who intend to practise in Quebec alone, but there are also men from many parts of the world. There are students from New Zealand, West Indies Africa and many other countries."

The Principal then spoke of the part which McGill took in the Great War. Out of seven thousand men, of whom two thousand were undergraduates, two thousand five hundred enlisted in the Army. Of these, three hundred and forty were killed and five hundred were wounded. Sir Arthur had met these men in France and found them to be from every path of life. He knows their true characters and is proud to say that they are of the noblest. McGill men served their country well.

The next item of the address was the connection of the graduates with McGill. Sir Arthur said that he found the graduates ready to give with an open hand to Old McGill. They still had the old affection for the Alma Mater, although they had long left the University.

Sir Arthur Currie concluded by thanking those who are assisting to make the campaign a success, and showed enthusiasm in stating that McGill would not be forgotten by any true Canadian.

THEATRES

THE PRINCESS.

The season's newest novelty, "A Trip to Hitland," will be the headline attraction at the Princess Theatre next week. It is composed of ten of America's foremost song writers, who have been writing hits from 1895 up to the present time, singing and playing songs they have created, among whom are such well-known composers as Billy Baskette, Nat Vincent, Bernie Grossman, Sam Ehrlich, Bobby Jones, Billy Frisch Leon Flatow, Ted Shapiro, Will Donaldson and George Fairman.

Marion Weeks, "The Dainty Coloratura Soprano," and Henri Barron, "The Operatic Tenor," will offer a musical treat to lovers of classical music. Walter Manthey & Co. present a varied offering introducing many of the new dance creations of the coming season.

McIntosh and His Musical Maids, in Scotch Songs and Dances, have won praise in all centres where they have appeared. Mary and Ann Clark, a pair of clever versatile entertainers, will be seen in an act which has been specially written for them.

Walter Fishter, supported by a clever cast, has a very amusing sketch entitled "Go Into the Kitchen." Mullen and Corelli combine talking, tunes and tumbling. Rayolite will be presented for the first time in Canada, announced as an artistic painting exhibition, will complete the programme.

THE NEW GRAND.

A shining example of the fallacy of employing help solely on the reference plan is presented to employers in a delightful way by Constance Talmadge in her newest picture, "Good References," to be shown at the New Grand Theatre all week, starting Sunday.

In this picture, Constance, as the heroine, takes the part of a poor girl seeking a job without references. She is turned down everywhere until finally she "borrows" the references of a sick friend. The scheme works, and she gets a job, and proves quite efficient.

The trouble with many employers, according to Miss Talmadge, is the fact that they themselves pay too little attention to the study of character and too much to looking up past records of achievement.

"Many girls with little or no previous experience would prove excellent workers if they were only given a chance," she said. "But the employers are afraid to try them out. However, times are getting better, and I hope to see all employers gain a broader and more human point of view.

"If a picture such as the one I have just made has any influence toward bettering the condition of deserving girls by calling attention to bad business practices, then I will feel satisfied.

"Knowing that references are sometimes misleading and often fail to do justice to the bearer, wise employers are hiring their assistants on a trial basis. Experiments in many of the country's largest offices has proven this to be the most satisfactory and economical method of maintaining an efficient staff."

On the same bill will be seen Charlie Chaplin in "The Immigrant," along with other pictures.

Miss Nora Wam, soprano, will sing on Sunday only. The New Grand Orchestra will render a selection, "Mikado."

LOEW'S.

Next week at Low's Theatre, the most sensational Animal Act on the vaudeville stage to-day will be presented.

Havemans' animals include Lions, Tigers and Leopards. These animals perform a variety of tricks and are under the perfect control of their trainer. The act is one which is sure to delight the audience.

Cook and Capman will dispense mirth and harmony in large quantities.

Maxon and Norris will offer an unusual Marionette Specialty which is entirely individual in its presentation.

Mills and Smith better known as "Hickville Rubes" have a rural comedy offering entitled "Home Talent" which is announced as a Laughter producer from start to finish, and "Cunningham and Doreto" in "Treat 'em Rough" are a versatile team with plenty of individuality.

The feature photoplay will be "A City Sparrow" starring Ethel Clayton.

RUNNING TO-DAY.

R. L. Hamilton.

The story deals with the adventures of a little Cabaret dancer who forsakes the bright lights of Broadway and takes up her life in the country. The peculiar part of it is that she stays there. "Chase Me" Sunshine Comedy and the British Canadian News Weekly will complete the bill.

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY HONORS SIR A. CURRIE

Many Well-Known Educationalists Speak At Convocation Commemorating the Tercentenary Of the Mayflower Compact — Tributes To Men Who Have Served Humanity In the Fields Of Education, Science and Letters.

The October number of the University of the Sate of New York's "Bulletin to the Schools" contains brief extracts of the addresses made at the fifty-sixth University Convocation, commemorating the tercentenary of the Mayflower compact and the first American legislative assembly.

The Convocation began with tributes to those who have notably served not only the State but humanity in the field of education and science and letters — and who have ended their term of service in the State, as President Schurman, or have gone from earth since the last Convocation, as Dosto, Maxwell, President Bliss and William Dean Howells. The main programme gathered around the theme "The Schools of Yesterday, To-day and Tomorrow." Against the background in which the first little Dutch school in Manhattan was pictured, there rose the vision of children so taught that "wherever the flame of God can be lit, it has been lit."

The Convocation had its culmination in the special recognition of a teacher who became the Commander-in-chief of the Canadian Expeditionary Forces in France and has been made principal of one of the great universities of Canada, General Sir Arthur Currie. Commissioner John H. Finley's address, conferring the honorary degree of LL.D. on behalf of the Regents of the University, concluded as follows: "The University invites you to that little distinguished company which your coming enlarges to six, and it does so not only in recognition of your high merit, but also as a tribute to the men of Canada whom you commanded in the Great War, and as an expression of good-will toward our nearest University neighbor, McGill University. We are proud to hang our colors (purple and the yellow of gold, which the autumn has made the most democratic of all colors in nature), on your brave shoulders, and, so, upon the high slopes of Mount Royal."

In his response Sir Arthur said in part:

"Education used simply for utilitarian purposes can be justified, education merely as a decoration is despicable, but education that wakes the imagination, that kindles the intellectual powers, that leads men to blaze new trails — that is the highest form of education. Here rests the ark that bears all that is left of the old world's civilization and from here we will create new ideals and send out new life and strength and hope to a new civilization — one that shall not pass away or be destroyed."

Extracts from other addresses given by "The Bulletin" includes the following:

PRESIDENT RUSH RHEES
University of Rochester.

"The philosophic mind brings to the man who has it a comprehensive view of life and life's task, of its relation to the world and the larger interests that transcend our human concern. That type of mind is peculiarly well adapted as an equipment for a man who is charged with the administration of a great and influential institution for the education of youth."

REGENT HERBET L. BRIDGMAN,
Tribute to the Late President Howard S. Bliss, of Beirut, Syria.

"Dr. Bliss transmuted faith, pure and profound, into works, beneficent and far-seeing, and his college united and personified the Christian religion and education with an effect that gave its work influence and acceptance throughout two continents, commanded respect of all powers and governments, and during the critical and exacting days of war was a stabilizing and tranquilizing force superior to any other."

REGENT JAMES BYRNE,
Presenting Gen. Sir Arthur Currie for the Degree of LL.D.

"All the brave deeds in Flanders have not brought peace and goodwill and happiness for the world, but only the opportunity to work for them free from the one great enemy of them all, that we have destroyed — to work for them by recalling all the high and noble words that we uttered in the exaltation of war, not to make us smile and say what fools we were, but to make us say how wise and honest we were—how our opened eyes saw reality, and our tongues spoke the things our eyes saw."

HENRY VAN DYKE.
Ex-Minister to the Netherlands.

"A man ought to think more of what he belongs to than of what belongs to him. When we see something queer in others it should be a kind of looking-glass. The best hope we can have is that God smiles at us as we do at our children. The things we toil for on earth are not vain — they are real enough, some of them, but all transient."

CHARLES R. SKINNER,
Ex-State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

"The bright side of teaching in those days was the certainty of receiving wages, not every week or every month, but at the end of the term, at $5 a week. We never had more — perhaps that was enough Certainly there was no strikes among the teachers in those days."

MRS. FRANK A. VANDERLIP.

"It is only through a knowledge of one another and of other civilizations we come to know one another. Understanding is to be the great peacemaker of the future. I believe if we could spend two billion dollars in helping education instead of two billion in a military programme we would go farther toward peace than in any other way."

DR. STEPHEN PIERCE DUGGAN,
Director of the International Education.

"The recognition that a sound education system is the best foundation for the social and political reconstruction that must follow the war has resulted everywhere in a willingness to carry increased burdens of taxation for education. The immense sums spent in the United States on its schools, averaging from one-third to one-half of all money raised by local and State taxation, are the amazement of Europe."

JOHN BURROUGHS.
Telegram.

"Educate more for individuality, for character, and not for mere scholarship. Modern education is too analytical and not enough synthetical. We want wholes and not parts merely, men and women and not mere scholars."

MADAME GROUITCH,
Wife of the Serbian Minister.

"If through my life I have been or tried to be a good American, proud of the privilege of being an American, I think I owe it far more to that little log schoolhouse and to what I was taught there than to anything that I may have picked up in my twenty-two years of European travel and experience."

HENRY W. HOLMES,
Dean of Graduate School of Education, Harvard University.

"The status of the teacher becomes in the last analysis a criterion of civilization itself. That nation is gerat and destined to endure which adds to its other souces of strength the presence of a teaching force respected, well rewarded, fully trained, and free."

MRS. HENRY OSGOOD HOLLAND,
Representing the New York State League of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Association.

"We are facing the greatest world problems and national problems that we have ever known. The boys and girls in our schools to-day will very largely solve these after-war problems for the next generation. And so there is a great challenge that comes to us that we shall rear a generation stronger in body, keener in mind, with a higher degree of integrity of soul than the world has ever known, to meet and to master these world problems."

HENRY NOBLEMAC CRACKEN,
President, Vassar College.

"Throughout the world to-day in this all-embracing organization (Junior Red Cross), the school friends of to-morrow await American children with a greeting of friendship and the offer to meet them half-way in mutual service."

ROSWELL P. ANGIER,
Dean for Freshmen, Yale University.

"One great change that the college of to-morrow should make is to forget culture, or mental discipline, as deliberate aims to indicate in its faculties or students, and to ask, when formulating curriculums or ideals, 'What are the natural roles, human nature being what it is and man's tasks in life what they are, that the various subjects of study in a college of liberal arts should play?'"

DR. CHARLES W. ELIOT,
President Emeritus, Harvard University.

"Wish you all success in urging music as factor in education, particularly in elementary and secondary schools. Music universally needed as source of general happiness and social inspiration and aspiration."

RUSSELL CARTER,
Newly Appointed Specialist in Music, State Education Department.

"If we are to start pupils in new habits that are worth while, we must teach them that real education comes only through doing: that it is faithful work, thoroughly done at the time it should be done, that in the end opens the door to the highest enjoyment and to the real application of any art. When music is faithfully taught upon that basis, there will be no question as to its educational value."

REGENT CHARLES B. ALEXANDER,

"History is not so much fact as prophecy. We look back in order to look forward wisely. So to-night we do not content ourselves merely with a remembering of the achievements of our worthy forefathers—we try, anew, to see our problems made more plain in the light of their achievements."

MARTIN H. GLYNN.

"We are in a period of great unrest. We hear admonitions about socialism, anarchy and Bolshevism, but I for one believe that the public schools of this State are the great panacea to correct all these ills."

PAYSON SMITH,
Massachusetts Commissioner of Education.

"I trust we are not asking the question as to whether the people of this country came by the route of Plymouth Rock or the Dutch colonies or the Cunard pier, but that when they come and after they are here, their eyes are upon America, their spirit is with America and their determination is to make America an example of human progress everywhere. That is the spirit of education to-day."

BIG PLAY-OFF MAY BE HELD IN MONTREAL

Will Varsity Recognize Pre-War Agreements?

DANGEROUS GROUND.

Persistent Workouts and Signal Practices the Order Of the Day.

Will the big play-off be staged at the Molson Stadium? A meeting is being held at Toronto this evening to decide the question, and there is every expectation that the decision may be in favor of Montreal. During the past week the executive of the Rugby Club has done everything in its power to have a neutral point arranged, but Toronto was not willing to consider it until the game to-day was over.

Under the present circumstances it is almost impossible to hold the game on neutral grounds. If the decision to have it in some other town was made to-night nothing definite could be arranged about the grounds until Monday or Tuesday. Following this tickets would have to be printed, and by the time they were dispatched to Montreal and Toronto it would be the end of the week. This would make it impossible to distribute them to the spectators who wish to see the game.

In any case, McGill thinks that it has a valid claim to have the game on the Molson Stadium. The agreement made in 1914 should still hold. At that time it was decided that the loser of the toss would have the choice of grounds if a play-off was necessary at any future time.

'Varsity cannot ask to have the game played in Toronto, when it is considered that the big contest was held there the year Intercollegiate sport was suspended in order to allow the bigger game overseas to progress. They might ask to have a toss for grounds again, but it is expected that they will agree to stand by the agreement made six years ago. It has been reported that they consider the agreement abrogated by the war, but this is probably only a press report.

Wherever the game is held it is very likely that it will be under adverse weather conditions. Yesterday when the team attempted to hold a practice on the Stadium it was almost impossible to do so owing to the condition of the grounds. There was a coat of ice over the field, and this with the layer of snow above it made it very treacherous for the players.

Shaughnessy confined the work-out to a signal practice. The men were put through the formation intended to confuse 'Varsity at the game next Saturday, and they seem to be well up on all the new plays. A large part of the time was used in running up and down the gridiron. This is being done in order to get the men used to the hard ground, as the game might be played under similar conditions. Last year the game played in the middle of November was on a hard field, and as the contest this year is at a still later date it is probable that the conditions will be better.

ENGLISH RUGBY.

The English Rugby game with Ottawa which was to have taken place to-day has been unavoidably postponed until next week.
